

Dear parents,

The bugs are certainly thriving at the moment. A particularly contagious one doing the rounds in our community is 'strep throat'. This can be quite a nasty illness and is often treated with antibiotics. Symptoms include a painful throat that comes on quickly, painful swallowing, red/swollen tonsils, small red spots on the roof of the mouth, and swollen glands in the neck. It is often accompanied by fever, headaches or a rash.

If you suspect your child has strep throat, please do not send them into school, and contact your GP.

Yours sincerely,

MR J BLAKE
